Nazi Organ Says: "Return Settlements" BERLIN PRESS AIDS JAPANESE CLAIMS

Berlin, May 26.
The GERMAN press has started to back Japan's claims on the international settlements in China.

Berlin papers are openly telling the democracies that they should accept the Japanese standpoint with regard to the creation of a new order in the Far East, instead of placing obstacles in the way.

A "Trans-Ocean" message quotes "Voelkischer Beobachter," the central organ of the National-Socialist Party, which, in a front page article, comes out in support of Japanese demands for the extension of Japanese sovereignty over international settlements on Chinese soil.

After describing the measures recently taken against Japan by Britain, France and the United States, which are seen by the paper to be direct or indirect backing of Chiang Kai-shek, emphasis is laid on the way in which the Japanese Government has all along insisted on "its sole and elementary right" to set up a new order in the Far East. This, it is contended by the German commentator, does not mean the exclusion of foreign Powers from the field of economic activity in Eastern Asia. London, Paris and Washington, he says, would be well advised to accept this Japanese standpoint, instead of trying to place obstacles in the way of the Japanese whenever they see a chance of so doing.—Trans-Ocean.

Greetings To Queen Mary Present From Duke And Duchess

LONDON, May 26.
BIRTHDAY greetings to Queen Mary are pouring in to Marlborough House from all over the world.

The family luncheon party, which is usually the chief feature of the anniversary celebrations, was cancelled to-day owing to the fact that the Queen Mother has not yet recovered from the effects of her molarling accident.

Members of the royal family called personally and sent messages, and there was a long cable to her from Their Majesties in Canada.—Reuter Special.

Gardens Of Flowers

Queen Mary remained confined to her room for her 72nd birthday. Her Majesty received more flowers to-day than she has done for many years.

A present from the Duke and Duchess of Windsor arrived this morning.—United Press.

ROYAL TOUR EXCEEDS ALL EXPECTATIONS

OTTAWA, May 26.—The royal tour is proving successful beyond all expectations. In the words of the man-in-the-street, "the King has the tour in the bag."

The King's affable and democratic bearing has gone a long way towards achieving success, but what has won the hearts of the Canadian is the way in which Their Majesties have repeatedly altered arrangements in order to

Magic Hands May Never Play Again

THE MAGICAL hands of Ignace Paderewski, the incomparable pianist, may never again thrill public audiences.

Paderewski, who in addition to being a musical genius, was one time President of Poland and is known as Poland's "George Washington", collapsed from a heart attack shortly before he was due to give a concert in New York last night, says "United Press." Friends fear that he may never play again.

His physicians warned him last night that owing to the extremely high rate of his pulse, playing his concert programme might bring on a fatal heart attack. Paderewski easily ranks as the most brilliant pianist of modern times. He has had a remarkable career, in the course of which he indulged in politics with the same facility and success as he performed on the piano.

Jobut In Films

Apart from the fact that he has given thousands of concerts since his debut in Vienna in 1897, Paderewski, two years ago at the age of 76, made his first full-length film, when he starred in "Moonlight Sonata", which was shown in Hongkong some months ago.

In this picture he sent Hongkong music lovers delirious with delight with his playing of "Polonaise", "Hungarian Rhapsody", and the "Moonlight Sonata". When the film was finished, the great genius declared: "It is extremely unlikely I shall ever make another." When the picture was given its premiere in Paris, Paderewski was too ill to attend.

Amazing Vitality

Challenging Paderewski's sheer skill as a pianist is his prodigious vitality, which even at the age of 76 has enabled him to continue to give platform concerts. He has never failed to fill the world's largest auditoriums, and his exquisite playing has been the source of inspiration to countless thousands.

Paderewski recorded his first lessons from his mother at the age of three. Two years later he started composing.

Ever since music has been the greatest influence in his life. The entire world has listened enthralled to his playing for the last 52 years, and the possibility that he will never again be heard on a public platform seems unbelievable.

Land Sales Boom

Land sales form the main feature on the revenue side of the accounts, and it is notable that up to the end of April the estimated total for the whole of 1939 had been exceeded by $457,872. Land sales for the year up to April 30 amounted to $1,207,872.73, and during April they produced $120,302.35. In April 1938 land sales amounted to $1,147.91, and for the first four months of that year were $1,013.03.

Duties were down during last month, producing but $592,104.43 compared with $772,839.31 for the same month last year, but the total for the year to date shows an increase of over $400,000. Licences increased last month by $100,000 to $1,015,734.13, but both the Post Office and Kowloon-Canton Railway were down, the former being $256,533.78 compared with $270,160.30 and the latter only $89,135.50 against $178,257.50 in April last year.

However, miscellaneous receipts showed the substantial increase of $1,000,000.

AMERICAN LINER UNHINDERED JAPANESE DEFER FURTHER ACTION

FEARS THAT the American President liner President Coolidge would be made the subject of a further Japanese naval demonstration were set to rest this morning when the ship arrived in Hongkong at 8.30 a.m.

Apparently, no further action is being taken by the Japanese naval authorities on the lines suggested in the threat issued in Tokyo.

It is emphasised, however, that the Japanese blockade does not commence until next Thursday.

Rumours were strongly current last night that the British and French naval authorities in the Far East contemplate strong reprisals if any further Japanese action on the lines of the recent hold-up of the Rangoon and Aramis is taken.

These reprisals, it is rumoured, will take the form of refusing clearance papers to Japanese ships using British and French ports for treble or quadruple the time British or French ships are held up.

Attempts to obtain verification of these rumours in official quarters are unavailing.

C.-in-C. In Foochow

The British Commander-in-Chief, Sir Percy Noble, arrived in Foochow in H.M.S. Birmingham this morning. It is believed that he will leave for Shanghai this evening or to-morrow.

The British Ambassador, contrary to expectations, has not remained in Kulungsu. Sir Archibald Kerr is understood to have been transferred to H.M.S. Birmingham as soon as he arrived in Amoy in H.M.S. Cornwall, and is now proceeding to Shanghai in the flagship.

Navy Talks Fail

SHANGHAI, May 27.—United States Naval authorities understand that the Anglo-American Franco-Japanese naval negotiations at Kulungsu have been terminated without an agreement.

It is presumed that the diplomatic officers will now take up the negotiations.

Meanwhile "Domel" from Tokyo reports that the Japanese authorities have condemned the termination of the naval negotiations, which they interpret as "a dirty trick aimed at shifting to the shoulders of the Consul-General the responsibility for the virtual deadlock in the negotiations."

Belated Chinese reports here to-day state that Japanese planes demolished a British church at Changpu, in Fukien, on May 26. They also badly damaged a British primary school at Yeyun and the Women's School at Yangsi.

The reports said two British priests are at present on route to Kulungsu to report to the British authorities there.—United Press.

Consular Parleys

Amoy, May 27.—Diplomatic negotiations regarding the proposed reform of the Kulungsu Municipal Council were understood to have been resumed when Mr. Goro Uchida, Japanese Consul-General, received Mr. E. H. Hitchcock, acting Chairman of the Municipal Council, at 3.30 p.m. yesterday.

It was understood that measures for amelioration of the general situation and the five-point Japanese proposal to the Municipal Council were discussed. Mr. Hitchcock is reported to have promised to reply to the Japanese proposals in a few days, after consultation with the Municipal Council authorities.

Meanwhile, the Japanese authorities are of the opinion that the question of the disembarkation of blue-jackets by the Powers should be settled through the negotiations between the naval commanders of the Municipal Council should be dealt with through diplomatic negotiations.

It is revealed that the deadlock in the naval conversations has resulted from the Japanese rejection of the

TRIPLE ENTENTE Japan Suspects Far East Clause

LONDON, May 26.
GREAT BRITAIN has sent Moscow complete proposals for a tri-power mutual aid pact.

It is understood they have informed the United States, Poland, Rumania, Turkey and other governments of the substance of the proposals which the French Government has approved.

The British Foreign Secretary has instructed the British Ambassador to Moscow to deliver the note to the Soviet Foreign Commissar or Vice-Commissar at the earliest possible opportunity.

The note is a compact draft of 400 words which has become the text of a formal alliance provided the Soviet accepts, which the British are confident they will do.—United Press.

Apply To Far East?

TOKYO, May 27.—The scope of the tripartite agreement between Great Britain, France and the Soviet Union will eventually be extended to the Far East, despite the assurances given by those Powers, local Japanese newspapers unanimously assert.

The "Chugai Shogyo" says that the so-called anti-aggression front will apparently be limited to Europe for the moment but that the Far East will eventually be included in its scope with further developments in the situation.

"It is a grave self-contradiction on the part of the Powers championing the cause of Democracy that they should institute collaboration with the Soviet Union to antagonise the Rome-Berlin combine, the paper adds.—Domel.

Stricken Boy Prays At Lourdes

LOURDES, May 26.
Fred Snite, the American boy who is a victim of infantile paralysis, lay in an iron lung through two early morning masses to-day, despite a bitterly cold wind, and prayed for "those poor English and Belgian French invalid pilgrims beside me in the grotto," while he gave thanks for life.—United Press.

BERLIN, May 26.—It is announced that the visit of Prince and Princess Paul of Yugoslavia beginning on June 1 will last a week, during which time he will be lavishly entertained by Herr Hitler, Dr. Josef Goebbels, Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop and Field-Marshal Hermann Goering individually.—Reuter.

Powers' proposals for the joint withdrawal or reduction of the landing forces at Kulungsu.

The Japanese authorities reportedly desire to continue conversations between the naval commanders of the Powers concerned and by side with the diplomatic negotiations.—Domel.

French Protest

PARIS, May 26.—The French Government has ordered the Admiral commanding the French Atlantic fleet to protest to the Japanese against the landing and searching of the French liner Aramis.

The Government is also studying the question of the Japanese blockade. The final attitude will be taken in conjunction with Britain, who is reported as being determined to enforce its rights.—United Press.

TO-DAY'S NEW MAP

Great floods which have burst both banks of the Rhine have reported last night to have flooded the famous German Siegfried Line.

These defences, which are the German counterpart of France's Maginot Line, although reportedly not quite so impregnable, were built by Herr Hitler during last September's crisis.

An official spokesman in Berlin last night, says a "Reuter message", denied the reports that the floods had entered the fortifications.

The floods are the greatest experienced along the line within living memory.

Raising The Ship

The plan generally being discussed is to send down divers with hoses to attach to valves on the hull of the vessel. Air will be pumped down to the closed boat to force the water from the flooded chambers and enable the Squalus to rise under her own buoyancy.

Otherwise she will be raised with the aid of pontoons, ten of which are PLEASE Turn To Page 4.

Tomb for 26 men

SUBMARINE SEALED

PORTSMOUTH, May 26.

WITH 26 MEN sealed in the flooded compartments, the sunken submarine Squalus has now become a salvage job which may take days, or perhaps weeks.

It is a job that must be done before there can be any explanation of the fatal plunge to 40 fathoms during a routine dive.

All the evidence at present indicates that a main air induction valve was open when the submarine was semi-submerged.

However, Alfred Pien, a seaman, who was on duty at the control board, insisted that even when the Squalus tilted stern first at an angle of 45 degrees and plunged stern first to the bottom "it could still see the control board and could see all the lights glowing, which meant that all valves were closed."

HORRIFIED WHEN SHE WAS WEIGHED

Took off 31 lbs. with Kruschen

Why continue to be fat? Why continue to be afraid to sleep on a weighing machine for fear of what it may show? Once you start on Kruschen, being weighed is no longer an ordeal, but a pleasure. Read how one woman is losing weight and gaining health by taking Kruschen Salts:

"I had become very fat (I am only 20), depressed, and always had indigestion and palpitation. At last I plucked up courage to have myself weighed, and, to my horror, I was 13 stone 11 lbs. This was four months ago, and now I am pleased to inform you that I am 11 stone 8 lbs. I have not dieted to any great extent, except that I eat brown bread instead of white, and have cut out potatoes and fried foods. Since I purchased my first bottle of Kruschen Salts, I have watched my weight decrease each week."—(Mrs.) J. R. W.

The six salts in Kruschen assist the internal organs to throw off each day the waste and poisons that encumber the system. Then, little by little, that ugly fat goes—slowly, yes, but surely.

German General Says Hitler Would Lose War WEAKER THAN IN '14

BERLIN. LIEUT.-GENERAL HORST VON METZSCH, leading German military authority, has caused a sensation in military circles by his "treatise on military politics" recently published, in which he says Germany could not yet win a war.

He says that Germany's only hope of winning would lie in a short "lightning" war, but declares there is little possibility of a war in Europe being a short one.

He adds: "War is always a jump into the dark. It is not possible to do anything more than reckon up probabilities."

"If Germany's armed forces cannot bring about a quick decision by a knock-out blow Germany will lose any war. We can see our salvation only in having the stronger striking force, never in the longer breath."

"We must, therefore, not give the world another chance to make us expend our punching force without reaching a decision, and then succumb to a superior military-economic power of endurance."

"SUFFOCATING"

"A short war must be aimed at, but it is naturally uncertain. It would, however, be just as irresponsible to deny the German hopes of a war period of a bearable length, as it would be to consider a short period of war as certain. But nothing must be left undone in order to protect Germany from the suffocating long war."

A few pages later General von Metzsch says that it is the aim of Germany's military policy to oppose the "hopeless economic war" with "superior force." He says: "As soon as maritime Powers participate in a war, a long war must be reckoned with. Naval wars are always long."

General von Metzsch states that Germany to-day, as far as the strength of her army goes, is far behind the standard of 1914, because general conscription has been in force only four years now. He adds: "It will be about twenty-five years before the striking force of the army can reach its peak."

He preaches the totalitarian war with no consideration for methods of humanisation, except those dictated by military efficacy.

He rejects the theory that a future war will be won in the air, and claims that the infantry as in the past will have the main work.

A warning is given against the unrestricted use of the air weapon for bombing civilian populations.

General von Metzsch says: "The spiritual resistance of the population against bomb attacks is astonishingly great." Concerning A.R.P. he writes: "The civil air defence will have done its duty if bomb attacks meet brave and disciplined people who know how to avoid panic, worst of all enemies of resistance."

SPIRIT WINS

He says that war "reveals all bluff and self-delusion" and insists that the "spirit and soul of a nation" is in the long run more important than weapons and mechanism.

The next war, he declares, will be won by the nation with the strongest nerves and character.

He calls on Germany to "be prepared" in farming. "It is necessary that agriculture in peace time should be so regulated that it can be carried on during war. War can break out suddenly; crops cannot ripen suddenly, but only slowly."

General von Metzsch also warns against the "attack without warning," says: "The edging of a brutal breach of peace without the observation of the usual formalities can lead only to a worsening of the war situation."

Resignedly, he says: "There is only one success in war—that is victory."

Wood Right Wu Aright

HAVING wooed Miss Right Wu Aright, Leong Ah Yow married her recently at Northampton Register Office.

His wooing of Miss Right—Right Wing Wu is her full name—was accomplished by letters that passed over the 6,500 miles between Northampton and Singapore.

Mr. Leong Ah Yow is a Northampton laundry proprietor. His bride's father is a Far Eastern silk merchant.

The bridegroom met Miss Right four years ago during a business journey to the East, and fell in love. After his return he became one of the Empire Air Mail's most enthusiastic supporters.

Adolf Hitler, one of the most famous men in German history, who recently celebrated his 50th birthday.

More And Better Air Liners

Fleet Street. Sir Kingsley Wood, when he spoke recently at the Air Registration Board's second anniversary luncheon, turned from military aviation, which, as he said, had to be the main procedure, to urge the necessity for increasing the number of British air liners. There were now, he said, some 30,000 miles of British commercial air routes. He hoped that in the near future it might be possible to organise routes covering many more thousands of miles for the use of British planes.

The working out of new Empire routes had reached an important stage, and it should be possible to look forward to a new era in civil aviation. It was essential to expand our building programmes for civil aircraft if we were to secure an adequate share in the development of the vital communications upon which the Empire largely depended.

The most immediate part of the whole general problem was the development of British civil air liners, which in merit, reliability, and performance could compete with the best produced in other countries.

British liners were needed which could not only be used by our own operating companies, but—even more important—could also be sold in the markets of the world. He thought that something might soon be done about this, particularly with regard to the proposed merger between Imperial Airways and British Airways, which he hoped soon to bring before Parliament. About the Air Registration Board itself, Sir Kingsley said that the delegation of functions (from the Air Ministry to the board), as contained in the statutory order, was now almost complete.

Sir Maurice Denny, the chairman of the board, said that he and his colleagues might soon reopen with the Ministry the question of the design of large aircraft. The present division of responsibility was very bad. In the two years since the board was formed—to take over control of civil aviation from the Ministry—civil aviation had expanded normally. The board's work had been twice as much as had been expected—so putting a great strain on its finances.

being towed here from Brooklyn Navy Yard. It is indicated that a combination of these two operations will be tried. The pontoons are cylinders 13 feet in diameter and 39 feet long, each with a lifting capacity of 80 tons when filled with compressed air. These were used successfully in raising the sunken submarine S4. Captain Amsden explained "The expulsion of the water from the flooded chambers must be done slowly, as a quick rise might result in the loss of the ship."—United Press.

Salvage Commences

Portsmouth, May 26. Salvage operations were commenced on the sunken submarine Squalus today.

A radio message from the Falcon said "A diver is going down to attach a permanent descending line to the gun on the vessel's deck."

This will be used for divers descending to clear the Squalus' deck of wireless antennae and other gear which might hinder the operation.

Meanwhile the Navy Yard hospital has released all the survivors, with the exception of Lieutenant J. C. Nichols, Charles Powell and Charles Kune, who are suffering from slight bronchial infections.

The commander of the dockyard has revealed that all the surviving crewmen have received strict orders not to discuss the disaster with anyone.

In his report, Lieutenant Commander Maquin said that unless there was electrical trouble it would have been impossible for the valve to have remained open when the signal on the control board showed it closed.

Seamen here are organising collections and attempting to assuage the grief of the families of the 26 dead.

Squalus Sabotage?

NEW YORK, May 26.—Reports that the Squalus was sabotaged followed the New York "Daily News" headline "Men At Valve Hint Sabotage."

The report is based on an interview with one of the crew, who said the lights on the control board showed all valves closed.

"I couldn't understand what had happened," he is reported to have said.

The "Daily News" claims that the Navy Department deleted Prien's remarks regarding sabotage.

However, the "United Press" correspondent, who interviewed Prien for all the pressmen, said this story is inaccurate and that no mention of sabotage had been made.

The Acting-Commander of the Navy Yard at Portsmouth, Captain William Amsden, said: "Despite certain statements in the press, there is no evidence at this time to substantiate the rumour of carelessness or sabotage."—United Press.

MEDICINES OF CATHAY

and are said to possess certain distinctive qualities, such as heat, cold, moisture, dryness, and wind.

Diseases are regarded as partaking of these qualities, either in their own nature or in their exciting causes. Medicines are thought to have qualities—suited for different—conditions and are classified accordingly.

The object of the Chinese physician is first to determine the class of disease, and he is then able to prescribe from a long list of medicinal substances with which he is acquainted appropriate remedies for its cure.

In order to help him in his diagnosis of disease, the Chinese practitioner of medicine is a master of pulse taking, and is able to distinguish as many as 24 different types of pulse, one of which must have some connection with the disease which he intends to treat.

The greatest consideration is paid to the selection of the various drugs—adapting their various properties, such as heating or stimulating, cooling or dispersing, moistening or drying—to the character of the disease.

The Chinese man-in-the-street is very appreciative of the scrupulous care paid in the selection of drugs, and he would perhaps be interested if he knew that many of the medicines which his forefathers have used for unnumbered generations are now being compounded in western countries into pharmaceutical preparations.

Some of these medicines have won a place in western dispensaries, such as tong-kwei (Aralia edulis) pulvis (Uvularia grandiflora), and taai-wong (rhubarb).

Chinese medicines occupy an important position in the nation's total export trade, amounting in 1936 to nearly $10,000,000.

Since the beginning of the war, Chinese medicine and the Chinese doctor have leapt into prominence, largely because foreign drugs are unavailable, but also because the Chinese people are beginning to appreciate the fact that their ancient system of medical treatment contains much that is highly valued in other lands.

Native drugs are being extensively used in Chinese hospitals for the treatment of the wounded, and their usefulness is further demonstrated by the wide demand in guerrilla units, refugee camps, and homes for war orphans.

Modern Chinese medical men are now turning their attention to the wealth of material afforded in the copious pharmacopoeia of their country, and their discoveries will be of tremendous importance in placing proved remedies at the disposal of the sick and ailing of the whole world.

and mingled with the crowds instead of merely standing at the door of the royal coach, as had been arranged.

Waves To Crowds

Their Majesties' action in appearing on the observation platform at the back of the train whenever it passes the smallest station is widely commented on as showing truly royal courtesy.

At the King's express command, an electric buzzer has been fitted on the engine which the engine driver has been instructed to sound whenever a crowd of any size is seen on the line.

On hearing the buzzer, the King and Queen immediately go to the nearest window and wave to the spectators.

The King's easy manner and avoidance of formalities were never so successful as during a reception to scores of Journalists—American, Canadian and British—who are following the royal tour, and there is every ground to believe that their Majesties' people here will almost be as vociferous in the United States as in the dominion.

On all public appearances, the King has been notably supported by the Queen, whose charming demeanour and obvious interest has made her a close second favourite to the King.

Arrival At Medicine Hat

Travelling all night through the Canadian prairie lands, their Majesties arrived at Medicine Hat to-day and were given a great welcome by the ranchers and farmers, who had come in from the surrounding country to greet them.

At Calgary, 2,000 Indians encamped in wigwags with their squaws, were among the most enthusiastic of the people who welcomed their Majesties to the "wild and woolly west" to-day.

The visit marks the end of the first long section of the royal trans-Canadian tour, and to-morrow their Majesties will spend their first day of complete rest at the Banff National Park in the Rocky Mountains.

The royal train left Medicine Hat for Calgary, which is the last of the "frontier cities" near the foot of the Rockies at 5.31 p.m. B.S.T. Through-out last night cowboys and cowgirls paraded the brilliantly illuminated streets, turning Calgary into a carnival city.

CHARITY BALL

Well Supported Dance At Hongkong Hotel

The Chinese women of Hongkong contributed further to charity last night when a Ball in aid of Chinese Industrial Co-operatives was held at the Hongkong Hotel, sponsored by the Hongkong Chinese Women's Soldiers' Relief Association and the Hongkong Office New Life Movement.

The proceeds to the charity were considerably increased by a successful raffle held during the evening.

Prominent among the people present were Sir Shou-son Chow, General M. A. Cohen, Lady Ho Tung, Dr. Kenneth Chan, the Hon. Mr. M. K. Lo, Mr. Li Tse-long, Mr. Peter H. Sin, Mr. Yinson Lee, Mr. George She, and Miss Daisy O'Keefe.

The cabaret turns of local talent contributed greatly to the evening's entertainment and funds for the Chinese Industrial Co-operatives were swelled considerably by a very successful raffle.

The young Misses Helen Wu and Rosita Loong, daughter of the famous film star, Violet Loong, captured the hearts of their audience with a toe dance, which in execution would have done credit to dancers of twice their years.

Popular Request

In response to popular request, Mrs. Percie Chen again rendered an interpretation of the famous Chinese Sword Dance.

Another dance of great appeal to patrons was that of Miss Gloria Yee and Mr. Herbert Tong, and was modelled along the lines of the Rogers-Astaire technique. It was a very fine item and fully deserved the ovation it was accorded.

Miss Colleen Ng Quinn contributed to the programme with a song, "Cinderella, Stay In My Arms," and followed this with a graceful solo dance.

The second last item of the evening was oriental. Four lovely hours from Persia, the Misses Doreen Weir, Dora Chow, Elsie Wong and Elsie Law, glided on to the floor in captivating costume and swayed to the haunting music of the Near East.

Messrs. George Chow, Teddy Yip, Herbert Tong and Tommy Lee, a harmony quartet, sang and tap danced to "I'll Never Let You Go," accompanied by Miss Doreen Ma on the piano. This was followed by a comedy number from the Gay Nineties. Both numbers were very well received.

The entertainment was arranged by Mrs. Violet Chan.

SCHOOL FOR DEAF

Governor's Interest In Inspection Tour

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Geoffrey Northcote paid a visit to the School for the Deaf at Kowloon, yesterday.

On his arrival the Governor was met by Rev. Lee Kau-yin, Miss Li Luk-wa, and Mrs. W. K. Cheung, and then inspected several classes in session, Miss Li, headmistress, explaining the methods by which the children were taught.

The School Council was then presented to the Governor and a school uniform with a badge attached, and a table cloth made by the students, were given him by one of the pupils.

Mrs. W. K. Cheung, headmistress of the Heep Yunn School, said: "The school was opened in 1935. The founders are Miss W. Griffin, Miss N. Elliott, and Miss D. Pope whose help is greatly valued in the school. Although it has but a short history it has been a bold experiment as the first institution to provide for the education of the Deaf in the Cantonese speaking area."

We are very grateful to your Excellency for coming to these modest premises, which we have rented and which we now find too small for the pupils, but we hope that after your gracious visit and interest in the school, the public will begin to realise that the education of the deaf is playing no small part in the Cantonese community.

ANZAC DAY SERVICES IN AUSTRALIA

Sydney. Anzac Day, commemorating the first landing of Australian troops at Gallipoli on April 25, 1915, was celebrated throughout Australia with ceremonies at dawn and processions of ex-servicemen in every State capital. Some 20,000 Anzacs marched past in Sydney.

A dawn service was held at the Sydney Cenotaph at 4.30 a.m. Lord Wakehurst, the Governor of New South Wales, headed the procession to the Cenotaph and offered the Anzac benediction.

A crowd of over 1,000 ex-Servicemen demonstrated outside the German Consulate in Sydney while assembling for the march. They objected to the Nazi flag being flown at full-mast and demanded that it be taken down.

Major D. Wark, V.C., and Gen. Gordon Bennett, who also has a distinguished war record, calmed the crowd and promised that the flag would be pulled down. The caretaker, on the advice of the police, removed the flag.

Other flags in Sydney were flown at half-mast for the Anzac march.

NEW ZEALAND

DAWN PARADE AT AUCKLAND

Auckland. Unusual fervour was shown by the public at the Anzac Day gatherings in New Zealand.

A dawn parade was held for the first time at Auckland. There was a remarkable demonstration by those attending.

The Governor-General, Viscount Galway, and the Prime Minister, Mr. M. J. Savage, attended the services here.

Black Watch Companies.—Recruiting for the New Zealand Scottish Regiment has revealed the keen enthusiasm of young men of Scottish parentage or recent in the Dominion. Already over 1,000 men have joined up. The companies are not a part of the New Zealand military organization, but are directly allied with the Black Watch Regiment in Scotland. Queen Elizabeth, as Colonel-in-Chief, has given her assent to the formation of the companies in New Zealand.

Yard Kept Watch On Him For 3 Years

SCOTLAND-YARD and Customs Investigation Department officials called for their records recently on Captain J. J. ("Paddy") Flynn, one-legged Irishman who was killed while flying with a nineteen-year-old typist Air Guard girl.

They marked the files with one word in large letters—DEAD.

But Paddy Flynn would have been alive to-day if he had stuck to making time-tables.

After the crash in which he lost his leg—in 1930—Imperial Airways gave him a job in their statistical department.

But time-tables bored Paddy and he went back to the air.

SHADOWED

Few of his friends knew that, for the last three years he had been watched on several occasions by Scotland-yard officers and Customs inquiry officers.

Flynn, former Imperial Airways pilot, was shadowed by the authorities when it was discovered that a foreigner had been smuggled into England by air.

For days police and Customs officers kept watch at his little flying field in Essex where Flynn kept a few planes. From there they followed him to a flat in the West End of London.

Flynn afterwards confessed that he had received £100 for a trip to France to "pick up a foreigner."

He was fined for breaking Customs regulations. He told the court that he had refused to fly the man back from France when he found out that he was an undesirable alien.

£200 JOB

Although still making history as a one-legged flying instructor, Flynn was soon under the notice of the police again when it was discovered that he had obtained an Irish Free State passport for a man living in London.

Paddy, who had been an organizer of the Irish Free State Air Force, flew to Dublin to obtain the passport and was paid £200 for the job.

When Scotland-yard seized the passport they discovered Flynn's part.

When he gave up his time-table job he started his own flying school. It had little success. It closed down, and for Paddy it seemed that his air days were finished.

Battling took away his furniture. His telephone was cut off. Last summer he was made bankrupt when he admitted liabilities of £137 with no assets.

The new flying boom took Paddy back into the air again.

M.P.S Approve Of Militia Bill

WESTMINSTER. A majority of 283 to 133 recently approved the time-table which enabled the Military Training Bill and its companion measure, the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces Bill, to pass all their stages in the House of Commons and become law before Whitsuntide.

The Prime Minister pointed out that the reasons for urgency were apparent. Our proceedings were being closely watched in other quarters. Any dilatory action would discourage our friends in Europe.

Five stages must be gone through before the first batch of militia men could be called up. Notice for registration must be given, then notice of medical examination, next came the examination itself, allocation of men to units followed and finally posting of notices to attend training.

The first batch therefore could not start training before the beginning of July.

If the bills were delayed until after Whitsun, training could not start before August.

He hoped the allocation of time would give reasonable opportunity for the discussion of all matters.

SOCIALIST PROTEST

Mr. Greenwood, the Socialist spokesman, of course protested that it would not. While admitting that the Government had given more time than was originally intended, he declared the allowance totally inadequate for discussion of "a departure from long-established British tradition" and talked of "unseemly speed" and forcing the Military Training Bill through "at the point of the sword."

Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Independent Liberals, admitting that the country would applaud speed and vigour, nevertheless found the "rigid machinery" of the time-table unnecessary.

After a promise from the Prime Minister to consider what could be done if the clause providing for the continuation of the Act beyond three years by Order in Council should not receive sufficient attention, the time-table was approved and the House went into committee.

Some War Costs

THE cost of war is always reckoned in terms of money expended, trade lost, damage to buildings and growing crops, and last, but not least, the toll of human lives and suffering. Much has already been written about the cost of the Sino-Japanese conflict. The tragic cost in lives is only too well known. It is interesting, however, to calculate some of the smaller items, which all mount up and eventually form a colossal total. Every shot fired means money—spent. Even a single rifle cartridge works out at something like ten cents, with replacement likely to be more expensive still, owing to the tendency for materials to go up in price: and millions of rifle cartridges are being fired every day in this conflict. Progressively, the shells from field-guns, trench mortars, and big cannon, are expensive items, the charge as well as the missile from a moderate sized gun costing enough in dollars to keep the average Chinese peasant family in comfort for about a month. Thousands of shells are being fired from guns of all calibres every day. Even bombing raids are costly, apart from loss of the larger aeroplanes which may cost around $100,000 or more. The big aerial bombs are worth a goodly sum in cash. Japan spends tens of thousands of dollars each time a mass attack is staged, both in missiles and in petrol, apart from the toll of occasional damage to, or loss of, a machine. Then there is the wear and tear of weapons. The average rifle has a life of thousands of rounds, though it probably becomes inaccurate after a few weeks of incessant use. The smaller cannon are not materially affected until they have fired some hundreds of rounds, but larger guns are subjected to a great deal of wear and tear. And so the toll goes on, money and blood being literally poured out in a seemingly ceaseless stream.

“GREEN FINGERS”

THE elite among gardeners are, of course, Scottish.

Although through the rickety little, once-whitewashed gate, approached by three cracked and ancient, rocky, green-stained steps, glimpses of glowing blossom are vouchsafed, yet penetrate beyond, and unthought-of natural glories are revealed.

No artificial landscape garden, but one with all the lovely airs and graces of nature's handiwork, lovingly instigated by mundane hands; the hands of one who merely suggests with hesitant trepidation his own unversed ideas.

Through shady alley, over-shadowed with flaming Bougainvillea, with dark-green foliage which later in the cycle will glow with golden blossom, and cuddled into the nethermost corner lies a neat, octagonal, little, house of the simplest local materials; the arching entry gay with varied Morning Glory this lovely late May morning.

THE MASTER of this most unlocal-looking domain peers from his dusky interior, his eyesight none too good.

Kindly is the expression on the long, lean face as he nervously (he receives few visitors) fingers the straggling, scanty growth of ginger hair on cheek, on lip, on pate. The eyes—what can be seen of them—are grey; the now wrinkled skin retains a suggestion of the freshness of a northern youth, and yet the evidence of the East's co-operation is undeniable, though scrutiny within the limits of good taste can give no valid reason, beyond the fragility of the small-boned frame.

He goes by a Chinese name; his life is amongst the Chinese; he is of them and not of us.

His history? He will not tell, and politely leads the straying talk towards the beauties of his wallflowers. Seldom is Green Fingers seen upon the high-ways, but on the rare occasions we have crossed upon the roads, he straightens creaking knees, squares the sloping shoulders, raises the battered old grey felt hat and peers shortsightedly into the greeting face.

Always must another take the initiative, or pass unseen. He salutes with all the grave courtesy of a cultivated gentleman and in excellent English, strongly “Rd”; no hint of any “velly.”

Incongruous as they are, my thoughts fly to the precincts of Canterbury and to a charming old prelate who, sympathising with a straying stranger, set the erring footsteps upon the needed path and, incidentally, added much to a sadly deficient historical education.

CONJECTURES are fascinating and lead to multitudinous possibilities. Certainly the forebears of Green Fingers include those hungry for the land, who deeply cherish green and growing lives; those who find intense enjoyment in the precocious development of a cabbage.

Every plant and every flower thrives upon his care; his blossoms surpass those grown by the comparatively wealthy, able to command the allegiance of the wage-earners.

Many others love a garden but none possesses the unknown influence of this little old man of mystery. Nothing which he plants sulkily refuses to cling to life. The tendrils of the vines reach to him in welcome; even the sunflower, it would seem, deserts the sun and turns towards mankind. Pansies, of course, eye him with confidence, sure in their security. His courtesy will not extend to those who seek their heads drooping in a bowl.

One of his rare comparatively expansive moments produced the confident assertion that they feel; that the sight of a mutilated tree fills him with shudders and that he passes with averted eye; that the obscurity of the line of demarcation between animal and vegetable worlds is regrettable and worthy of prolonged study, and were he only younger what might be not achieve.

RUEFUL complaint is often heard of the sameness of Hongkong, of the lack of something new; that her inhabitants are cut from the common mould; but shun the market place, penetrate behind the scenes where surprising and refreshing co-colonists sustain life as to them seems best, regardless of the world outside; and querulous unrest may change to vivid interest.

A Look Through The “Telegraph”

50 YEARS AGO

May 27, 1889.
The reason the Victoria College is so long getting finished has been, at last discovered—it is carried away in sections by thieves as fast as it is put up. The chief objects of interest to them are the brass hinges of the doors, hundreds of which, without exaggeration, have been from time to time stolen.

25 YEARS AGO

May 27, 1914.
The House of Commons passed the third reading of the Home Rule Bill by 261 votes to 274.

Save by a small handful of far-seeing individuals, Kowloon was, much less than a score of years ago even, the despised portion of the Colony. There was one cry which has often been voiced on Kowloon's behalf by the Telegraph—the cry for more light, better lighting facilities. The prevailing conditions are nothing short of a disgrace to the Colony; they constitute a grave public scandal. Strong as these words are, they are fully warranted by the facts of the case, which can be gathered by anyone taking the trouble to stroll through Kowloon after dusk, provided it is not a moonlight night. No part of the peninsula is well lit; many parts of it are left in absolute darkness.

10 YEARS AGO

In consequence of the continuation of dry weather, further water restrictions are to come into force as from Tuesday next.

5 YEARS AGO

A record was created at the Kowloon wharves this morning, when for the first time all the ten berths, including the new one, was occupied.
In all, there were ten steamers berthed, the total tonnage of which came to nearly 120,000 tons.

MEDICINES OF CATHAY

THE ART of medicine is one of the few sciences which needs no apology.

The liability of the human race to disease is an all-sufficient reason for its existence.

However erratic its progress may have been through the ages, its boon to suffering mankind has been undeniably great.

IN THE West where the talent and indefatigable energy of its adepts have been expended in endeavouring to enhance its value, every department of medicine has benefited from the self-denying labours of its research workers.

Great names like those of Koch, Pasteur, and Ehrlich crowd themselves on the memory, recalling notable advances in various fields of the science.

In the East, on the other hand, little has been done for medicine as a science until very recent years. In fact, until the advent of western methods of treatment, the functions of the body were imperfectly understood, and the application of remedial agents generally enveloped in an appalling veil of superstition and dogma.

THIS WAS especially the case in China, which although one of the most populous, wealthy, and cultured regions of the globe, has been content to regard medicine as a secondary science.

The healing art has been permitted to remain in a mediæval state, subjected to practically no restrictions or control.

No recognised system of imparting knowledge of the science was followed, and as may be expected in such circumstances, diplomas or certificates were not required.

Any person desirous of taking up the practice of medicine either read those books which he thought desirable, or else attached himself to some already established physician for a few months or years as the case might require.

The former method of learning was most in vogue; for if an intending doctor could procure a manuscript book containing medical formulae handed down for a number of generations, he was considered to be well on the way to becoming a successful practitioner.

This was because old books were regarded as containing the results of the experience of successful medical men, and in view of the tremendous value of the antique, it is to be expected that such manuscript works were worth their weight in gold.

Medicinal notebooks of this kind were carefully retained in families, and to this day, if a Chinese doctor of the old school can advertise in the vernacular press that he is a physician of three, four, or five generations, he is supposed to possess all the ability and experience accumulated by his ancestors, and is therefore entitled to enjoying a lucrative practice.

IN THE time of the Empire, unsuccessful aspirants for a literary degree would often take up the practice of medicine, and this procedure is still followed to a certain extent. For instance, Chinese youths of education, lacking capital, or inclination to pursue a mercantile career, often turn their attention to medicine or dentistry. Strangely enough, these "irregular" practitioners generally specialise, for Chinese medicine like its western counterpart is sub-divided into different branches. Thus, one physician will undertake the treatment of fevers, rheumatism, etc.; another, the diseases of women, and so on.

Dentistry or surgery are popularly regarded as being on a lower plane than medicine, probably because in the absence of surgical and dental knowledge most manipulative operations were not understood.

IT IS a singular fact that although Chinese physicians, whose knowledge of medicine from western standards is highly imperfect, are yet able to treat the majority of their patients quite judiciously.

Their theory of "material" medica may be rather sketchy, but they have learned through experience the uses and properties of a formidable number of medicinal substances, many of which, from their therapeutic value, are now being adopted into western pharmacopœias.

Chinese medicines have also been pioneers in advancing diet and being marvellously accurate observers of the course and treatment of diseases, they have been successful in treating cases by empirical methods, that is, by the age-old plan of trial and error.

Such a system of medical procedure is bound to be mixed with much that is reminiscent of the days of Ptolemy, but while the Chinese physician may be ignorant of the cause of the disease which he is treating, he is frequently successful in its cure.

Thus, many Chinese doctors enjoy reputations which their western colleagues might well envy, bringing them patients from vast distances, and even from the most remote parts of the country.

AS IS well known, the Chinese are an intensely practical people, and this trait is amply revealed in their dealings with their physicians.

For instance, when a person is taken ill, his family or friends consult some medic, who undertakes to treat the case.

If the results do not follow expectations, another doctor is invited in, and in the case of his failure, successive gentlemen of the art are sent for.

Finally one is found, whose treatment of the case is regarded as satisfactory, and he is left in charge. But should the patient not do as well under his care as was expected, they again resort to the process of selecting another medical attendant.

They naively reason that "there is no sense in retaining a doctor in charge of a case, if he cannot effect a cure."

IN THEIR theory of medicine, Chinese physicians follow the system of the past, believing that the organs of the body are allied to various natural substances, such as metal, wood, water, fire, and earth. These are the "five elements" of the universe, and the "five elements" of the human body.

Of Course You Know, But Are You Sure?

If your intelligence is functioning at its top, you should have no trouble in making the coveted 50. If it isn't, 40 should be a fair average effort. But remember, below 30 is not so good. So take two points for a win, nothing for a loss and hope for the best.

1.—Somewhat less than human, somewhat more than beast is Sagittarius, the Archer of the Zodiac and the sign of December. Being half-horse and half-man, the Greeks, who had a name for everything, called him a—

Satyr; demigod; dryad; centaur; orad; sylph.

2.—It is difficult to believe that in these troubled days there still exists a race which does not know the meaning of aggression, has in fact, got by without a war. That race is—

The Dyaks of Borneo; the Aruntas of Central Australia; the Eskimos; the Negritos of Malay; the Javanese; the Lapps.

3.—Assuming that you are an average man or woman with an average heart, your average heart every day beats—

10,000 times; 40,000 times; 60,000 times; 100,000 times.

4.—Which of these is the largest structure in the world?

Salisbury Cathedral, England; the Eiffel Tower, Paris; the Brown House, Munich; St. Peter's, Rome; the Empire State Building, New York; the Harbour Bridge, Sydney.

5.—"Pass the sodium chloride," said Myosis Murgatroyd, airing his crudition at lunch the other day. "How often must I tell you to say, 'Please,'" barked his father, passing the—

Mustard; vinegar; salt; sugar; pepper; butter; pickles.

6.—Newfoundland, in case you do not already know, is Britain's oldest colony. It was discovered by—

Drake; Frobenius; Columbus; Cabot; Captain Cook; Flinders.

7.—"Harry," said the Tycoon of Toorak to his wine steward, "see that you serve the sparkling champagne correctly meaning, of course, that it must be served—

Slightly chilled; at room temperature; at body temperature; very cold; at boiling point.

8.—Wellington was the corpse which came like an honoured guest, which does not alter the fact that the city of Wellington, in New Zealand, is in the—

North Island; South Island.

9.—If you don't know your modern history, you look like losing two points cold for not knowing that the first country to make peace with its opponents in the Great War was—

Italy; Belgium; Germany; Rumania; Russia; Austria.

10.—You've heard of things getting into a state of torpor during the summer—you call them—

Hibernators; members of Parliament; mammals; torporites; estivators; carnivora.

11.—Some people suffer from tinnitus and they suffer so badly that they don't know what. They needn't worry, though, for tinnitus is only a—

Bad memory; mild toothache; ringing in the ears; form of sneezing; tummy-ache.

12.—If you've heard of dietitians you've heard of vitamins, and if you've heard of vitamins you can't back out of this by saying you've never heard of calories, which measure—

The distance between meals; your daily liquor allowance; year acid content; the heat producing value; the fat around your heart.

13.—Many of the world's greatest musicians died in poverty; several were afflicted with blindness; at least three went mad, but one wrote his greatest works when he was deaf. That one was—

Handel; Brahms; Mozart; Bach; Debussy; Beethoven; Gershwin.

14.—If I told you that while I was playing my favourite sport last Saturday I was struck on the shins by the puck, you would know at once that my favourite sport was—

Lacrosse; basketball; skittles; euehre; ice hockey; pelota; polo; hallow.

15.—Murgatroyd, who can be an offensive end when he likes, called me an antinomian. Naturally I bent him to his knees in righteous wrath, because an antinomian is one who—

Resists all progressive laws; sleeps with his boots on; eats spaghetti with a spoon; opposes established law and order; beats his wife.

16.—All of these countries are kingdoms; at least they were when this edition went to press. And two of them are ruled over by minors. Those two are—

Norway; Belgium; Shum; Holland; Jugo-Slavia; Denmark; Rumania.

17.—Neville Chamberlain, Mr. to you, if you please, was a big shot before he became Prime Minister. Yes he was. He was—

Minister for Home Affairs; Mayor of Birmingham; Governor-General of Australia; Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

18.—Mr. Chamberlain has every right to claim the attention of posterity for his championing of the policy of peace through strength. He will also be remembered because he—

Gave it to my wife to cut up for the children; ate it; stored it away carefully in the old oak chest; hung it on the wall.

25.—This is one so old that everybody should know the answer. But I am putting it in in the faint hope that somebody will fall for it. If a brick weighs nine pounds and half a brick, what does a brick and a half weigh?

9½ lbs.; 17 lbs.; 13½ lbs.; 27 lbs.

Carries an umbrella in his portfolio; refuses to work on Fridays; suffers from gout; dislikes garlic; is a keen huntsman.

19.—Murgatroyd is thinking very seriously of having his eldest son, Myosis, when he leaves the university, apprenticed to a dowser.

Everybody should know that a dowser—

Uses a divining rod; throws cold water on everything; turns on the taps for the fire-brigade; extinguishes the street lamps.

20.—"Procrastination is the Thief of Time" is, as you know, an iambic pentameter and a proverb which has been thumbed and dog-eared so much that it has degenerated into a platitude. Its originator was—

Charles Dickens; W. M. Thackeray; Solomon; Edward Young; Charles M. Reade; Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

21.—Strictly speaking this one should be for men only. If you presented your wife—or anybody else's wife for that matter—with a baboushka, you would expect to see it—

Adorning the kitchen floor; draped over the what-not in the parlour; around her waist; on her head; sleeping peacefully in the cradle.

22.—Be warned in advance that I am out to trick you, so be very careful over this one. If each of four pairs of twins has a son, altogether their sons would number—

Four; eight; 10; 16; 24; 40.

23.—We will accept as an established fact that Estonia, formerly a Russian Province, is now a Sovereign State on the shores of the Baltic. We will also accept as an established fact that its capital city is—

Kovno; Oslo; Memel; Riga; Helsinki; Tallinn; Narva.

24.—It is not often that I dream, but the other night I dreamt—only dreamt, mind you, that somebody presented me with a Botticelli. So I dreamt that I—

Gave it to my wife to cut up for the children; ate it; stored it away carefully in the old oak chest; hung it on the wall.

25.—This is one so old that everybody should know the answer. But I am putting it in in the faint hope that somebody will fall for it. If a brick weighs nine pounds and half a brick, what does a brick and a half weigh?

9½ lbs.; 17 lbs.; 13½ lbs.; 27 lbs.

Help Your Children to Study

By A Schoolmaster

HOW many parents, whose children attend day schools, can honestly say that they give their sons and daughters every encouragement and opportunity to study at home in the evening?

Homework, I fear, is regarded by fathers and mothers more as a nuisance than a necessity. At best, it is often an excuse for telling the children to keep quiet and get on with their lessons, so that dad may read his evening paper while mother knits and listens to the wireless.

Many of us must remember evenings when we were asked, "Have you no home lessons to-night?" The question often came, not out of interest, but because we had become fidgety and were irritating the older members of the family. It was simply an excuse for making us keep quiet.

In this age when diplomas and certificates appear to count for so much, surely it is reasonable to expect parents to do something to help their children to obtain the coveted documents. If the result is worth having, it should be worth a little trouble during the school years.

The Wrong Atmosphere

As a schoolmaster, it is my honest opinion that, although parents realise that a good education is of greater importance than ever in the past, they do not do enough to help their children to obtain the coveted documents. If the result is worth having, it should be worth a little trouble during the school years.

Their desire seems to be not to see their children well educated (with all that entails), but simply to see them the possessors of a certificate which will help in the quest for a job. If this is true, as I believe it to be, then the whole purpose of education has gone astray—and sadly astray.

The strange thing is that many parents of moderate means are prepared to make great sacrifices in order that their children may have the benefits of secondary education, and then they counteract all these efforts by failing to inculcate in them a desire to learn and to provide them with a suitable atmosphere in which to study. It is one of those obvious things which we often fail to see until they are pointed out to us.

It is not enough to leave the education of your children to their schoolmasters. Unless the teaching they receive in school is amplified at home, the results will not be all that may be desired. Certainly, there are children to whom learning is no trouble. They are naturally interested in the acquisition of knowledge and will study without the application of force or encouragement. The average child is not so made, and requires a good deal of both if he is to pass examinations.

Will to Learn

At this point I should, perhaps, make it quite clear that I do not regard the passing of an examination as the chief aim of education; far from it, but I do realise that many children are kept at school for that purpose, and it is the duty of a schoolmaster, whether he likes it or not, to help as many of his pupils as possible to pass their examinations. If it means a certain amount of grind and uninteresting work, it is the aim which the pupil (or perhaps I should say the parent) has set himself, and he must submit.

That entails study at home, for I am firmly convinced that, however good the teaching in school may be, it is the conscious effort made by the pupil himself which is the greatest factor in his success. Some pupils will learn in spite of bad teaching; others will never learn in spite of good teaching. There is more truth in the remark that genius is three-quarters hard work than we sometimes think. Both at home and in school there must be a conscious effort of concentration and memory and the will to learn.

How, you may ask, is a parent to help? You may say to yourself that you weren't much good at lessons and don't feel yourself in a position to do anything about it. You may simply say that you pay fees and that it is the schoolmaster's job, not yours, to see that the children learn. Examine yourself and make sure that it isn't just laziness on your part. After all, they are your children, aren't they? If their own parent is not prepared to go to some trouble for them, it's hardly good of a mere stranger to try to educate them for you—and that for a mere pittance at which a doctor or a lawyer would scoff.

Routine of Study

You can help in many ways. First of all, set a time apart for the children's studies. There's nothing like routine. The length of time will depend greatly on the age of the pupil and the seriousness of his studies. Choose a time when there are likely to be few interruptions. And do, please, switch off the wireless during this study period. Nothing is more distracting to a child when he is trying hard to concentrate.

Not long ago I suggested to a pupil that the exercise he had given me had been done to the accompaniment of the wireless. He admitted it, and promised to do the next one shut up alone in his bedroom. He kept his promise, and the result was amazing.

Help your children to see that homework is a job which has to be done. Like all other jobs, it gives a feeling of satisfaction when it has been accomplished—and you can add to that feeling by appreciating the young students' efforts. Not by bribing them, but by sympathetic understanding of their difficulties and by helping them to overcome them.

Give them a room or a corner of a room where they can keep their books and, if possible, have a little table to work at. Home-lessons are not to be done on the corner of a tea-table or on the arm of a chair. It is an important piece of work, and deserves some little dignity. If the children retire to a special room, it will soon take on the atmosphere of a study, and atmosphere helps.

Show some interest in their work. Ask questions about it, and encourage them to tell you what they are studying. Get them to explain things to you—even if you don't understand the subject, it will help them to clarify their own ideas and fix them in their minds.

If they have difficulties, why not write a friendly note to the teacher and explain this, asking him or her to look into the matter? Children usually tell their parents more than they tell their teachers about the difficulties they experience—and parents sometimes put them down to the teacher's inability to explain things, whereas it may have been inattention on the child's part.

A Place for Sport

While I strongly recommend that lessons should be regarded as the serious side of life, do not forget that a child must have exercise and games. But do not magnify the importance of a child's sporting activities—unless he is to become a professional footballer. Help him to realise that sports is the lighter side of life, which is to be enjoyed in the right spirit at the right moment. Sport is relaxation, and without it good work cannot be done, at least in the case of a child. Inability to concentrate is sometimes due to lack of exercise, so let the lessons be done after some time of relaxation and movement—not immediately after school—but do not expect a child to concentrate on mental work when he is physically fatigued.

These are merely a few suggestions which can be supplemented by parents. I submit them with no hesitation, for I am convinced that if children can be taught how to study at home, the increase in happiness both to parents and children will be well worth any trouble which may be incurred. Do, please, help your children to study.

Sundaes Girl To Film Star

A film agent's passion for "hot fudge sundaes" has brought fame to a golden-haired girl who used to sell that delicacy in a candy store in Hollywood.

The agent saw the girl, told her she was wasting her time and gave her an introduction to the Paramount Film Co. She went to the studios for tests and recently she arrived in England as the star of five pictures within her first year of film work.

She is Ellen Drew, and with the Welsh-born film hero, Ray Milland, she has gone to England to star in the film version of "French Without Tears," which is to be made at Sound City.

Miss Drew's biggest film to date, "The Lady's from Kentucky," in which she stars with George Raft, was released in London.

A Lay Sermon

WHY royal? What thought dictates the choice of this particular adjective to describe the law, laid down by God, that I must love my neighbour as myself?

The law in question is constitutional: it is royal in the sense that any breach of it is a revolt against the Kingship of God. The Kingdom of God has a constitution, whose essence

The royal law resides in the JAMES II. 8. words: "many one body" (I Cor. xii. 20).

Authority rests with the head, which is Christ, but we ourselves are His body, and the maintenance of His rule requires the perfect obedience of every part. Obedience is thus the only real standard of worth. Rank and social status have nothing to do with it: any man is my superior who is more obedient than I.

"If ye have respect to persons ye commit sin." It is a bit of a shock to some of us when St. James reminds us of this. But his meaning is perfectly clear. Among the members of Christ's body every denial of equality is a threat to the Christian commonwealth; it is treason against the King.

Dear Kiddies,

Lots of entries this week for the animal competition. Many of you gave incorrect answers for the second and twelfth animals. The second was a llama and the twelfth was a panda.

After carefully looking through the correct entries and taking age and neatness of handwriting into consideration, I decided to award the prizes this week to:

Susan Gehring (aged 12), 118, Waterloo Road.

David Carvalho (aged 8½), 15, Ashley Road.

Ronald Holmes (aged 7½), 5, Gun Club Hill.

Coupons have been sent to Susan, David and Ronald which I want them to bring to the "Hongkong Telegraph" offices in Wyndham Street. The coupons will then be exchanged for money prizes.

I want to specially commend the following for excellent work:

Seniors: Wong Yung-tsing, Eunice Schwender, Beryl Wong, David

Mackie, Claudi Coom, David Lindell, C. Ross, Daniel Chey, Joan Gordon, Yeung Kit-wa, G. Jhumat, G. Remedios, I. Osmund, Yung Yim-yiu, Mabel Swaine.

Intermediates: Eileen Peters, Anne Cullimore, Francis Rozario, D. Tavares, S. Clarke, S. McIntyre, Roberto de Sousa, Eleanor Pirie, Wendy Burton, Paddy Grimmit, Roy Holmes, Rehamt Samy, J. Strange, Joan A. Daniel.

Juniors: Pauline Neubronner, Aw Sian, Anthony Cutcher, Tony Rozario.

This week, kiddies, we are having a simple interesting competition.

The puzzle is to make a double word-square based on the key-word "Batsman." The sketches give you the words needed—note that each word fits in twice, across and down! To start with, at the top corner you will see that LAMB is the right word (as it ends with B); in the lower square the letters of the key-word will be the first letters of the words to be fitted in.

If you can complete the puzzle, copy out your solution neatly. Fill in the name, age and address coupon and send your entries to Uncle Eddie

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Simple "mask box" makes it easy to take pictures with trick "frames." Above, "keyhole" picture. Right, box showing placing of camera and cut-out mask.

Upper right, various cut-outs: keyhole, gothic window, field glasses, stairway window, giant cactus silhouette, porthole and rocky cave mouth.

SNAPSHOTS with trick "frames" are easy to take, and fun to show. You can get pictures apparently made through keyholes or field glasses—and many other novel effects.

Obtain an ordinary cardboard box. It should be about twelve inches one way, and eight inches or more the other two dimensions. Exact size doesn't matter. Cut a hole in the middle of one end, a bit larger than your camera lens. Cut a large opening in the opposite end, and over this place a large "keyhole" cut out of cardboard (see drawing above). It is a good idea to paint the inside of the box black, to guard against stray reflections.

New, place the box on a firm support, such as a table. Slight through the small rear opening, and adjust box until it frames the scene you want to picture. Line up the camera with the rear opening, as shown—and take the picture. Use a small lens opening, making a "time" exposure if the light requires it.

For other effects, just use a different cutout, such as those shown above. Make cut-outs with simple outlines. When you use a mask box twelve inches long, a cut-out opening about six inches high or wide is usually satisfactory. After your first roll of pictures, you can tell if larger or smaller masks are preferable.

Since the cut-out masks are close to the lens, they will be somewhat out-of-focus and "fuzzy." This helps conceal the faking, and adds to the effect.

John van Guilder

Lots of luck, kiddies.

Prizes will be awarded for entries which are correct and, in my opinion, best written or printed.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

Engineers make good reading

GREAT ENGINEERS:
BY PROFESSOR C. MATSCHOSS
Translated from the German by
Dr. H. Stafford Hatfield
(G. Bell and Sons, 12s. 6d.)

ENGINEERS, no matter how great, are not held in much honour. Which is odd, because you and I live in a civilisation—yes! Let's still call it that for convenience—conditioned by the haphazard results of engineering initiative.

Because the steam engine was invented in the eighteenth century, grew up and became locomotive rather more than a century ago, we are what we are.

Great engineers have been the haphazard, unconscious architects of modern history. On the whole I feel that James Watt, Trevithick and the Stephensons changed the world more convulsively and drastically than Napoleon and his marshals.

Marconi was a much more important Italian than Mussolini can even hope to be. The whole motor-car industry of the world rests on the achievement of three Germans—Daimler, Benz and Maybach. Hitler will never alter the habits and outlook of mankind as they have done.

Therefore, I welcome this book, which is the first modern attempt I remember to give an intelligent, non-technical account of some of the greatest engineers, and of their most important achievements.

Unfortunately, I must add that Professor Matschoss has written a very bad book.

He has left out all consideration of social implications. National pride has led him to dwell on minor German triumphs of no interest or importance. We hear all about Holzhäuten, Dinnendacht, Reichenbach—of whom I never heard before. But what about Lillenthal, the German father of poweries flight? What about the other pioneers of aviation? Why is Count Zeppelin left out?

Engineers, even more than pure scientists, loose forces they cannot control. Their genius has poured disorganisation, war, unemployment, slums, disease, poverty and prostitution on the world. It would be unjust to say that they have regarded these horrors with indifference. Rather they have ignored them or not noticed them, while they went on either to solve new technical problems or else rubbed their hands with horrid joy at all the money they were making.

Any sensible society would impound every new engineering process, examine it cautiously, and then only introduce it to the world once adequate safeguards had been arranged against its commercial exploitation for profit by the few and for loss to the many.

A homicidal maniac with a bomb hovering over a city in an airship is a much more benevolent creature than an engineer bent on making his fortune—so far as human happiness goes.

This book is a better argument for the common sense of Socialism than most Labour speeches or pamphlets, even though it is written and translated without form or any feeling for words.

And—besides all that, Professor Matschoss manages to be so interesting. I liked reading his book, and I do hope more and better books will follow this morning star of engineering biography. Professor Matschoss has left out plenty.

Refugees

YOU AND THE REFUGEE
By Sir Norman Angel and
Frances Buxton
(Penguin, 6d.)

WHAT a lot of nonsense is being talked about refugees. Actually the problem is not at all what it seems to be at a first glance.

England takes very few refugees—only a twentieth of those being taken by France.

And it is not true that refugees put English people out of work.

The real threat to employment lies in the fact that in a year or two the population of Britain is going to fall. Consider just one effect of that.

The railways say that even with our present population they find it hard to get a "square deal." What sort of a deal are they going to get if the number of possible passengers falls year by year? How many railwaymen will keep their jobs?

At all costs we must stop our population from falling. That can only be done in one of two ways: by raising the birth-rate or importing refugees.

If you want to discuss the refugee problem with people you meet, then begin by having the facts. Learn them up from this concise and readable book.

JAPANESE CRISIS ON ALLIANCE ISSUE

Portugal Alliance

He said that certain pre-war proposals regarding Portuguese territory were dead, and "we have not the slightest intention of reviving them."—Reuter Special.

Developments

Concern In House Of Commons

London, May 26. The Sagres affair was raised again in the House of Commons by Mr. S. de Chair (Conservative, South West Norfolk), to whom Mr. Butler replied, "Representations for release have been made in London and Tokyo and we shall continue to press the Japanese Government to expedite a settlement of the case."

Mr. Butler said that he understood that the Japanese authorities claim to be still engaged in examining all the facts which they regard as relevant.

Mr. de Chair asked if the House could be assured that some really vigorous action be taken to secure the ship's release.

Mr. Butler recalled the Premier's statement that he regarded the situation as completely unsatisfactory.

"That is the Government's point of view," said Mr. Butler, "and we are pressing the case in that light."

Mr. Fletcher (Labour, Nuneaton), asked if the Government would consider refusing a clearance for some Japanese ship in a British port until the Sagres was released. Mr. Butler replied that every consideration would be borne in mind.—Reuter.

ARAMIS HOLD UP

Shanghai, May 26. The French liner Aramis arrived shortly after 6 p.m., and as soon as the vessel had docked the Captain left the ship without seeing newspaper representatives as he was in a hurry to make a personal report to Vice-Admiral Decoux, Commander-in-Chief of the French naval forces in the Far East, who arrived this morning from Amoy.

Passengers on the liner stated that Japanese naval men boarded the vessel and left after examining the ship's papers. They did not attempt to make any other searches or interfere with the ordinary activities of persons aboard the Aramis.—United Press.

RANPURA PROTEST

Shanghai, May 26. The Ranpura protest lodged to-day with Vice-Admiral Oikawa, Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese China Seas Fleet. The protest was contained in a note sent him by the local British naval authorities.

Previous protests had been made by Sir Robert Craigie to the Foreign Office in Tokyo and by Admiral Sir Percy Noble to the Commander of the Japanese Fleet in South China.—Reuter.

VERY SERIOUS VIEW

London, May 26. Mr. Butler in the House of Commons agreed with Mr. Henderson that such a blockade was contrary to the rule of international law.

Sir J. S. Wardlaw-Milne said he did not wish to add to the difficulties in the Far East, but what did Mr. Butler mean by saying the blockade of the Ranpura was of a routine character. He said he had never heard of circumstances which included the stopping and searching of British shipping by a foreign Power being described as "routine."

Mr. Butler replied, "What I said was that in the boarding of the ship no attempt was made to examine the manifest or cargo. The fact that the ship was boarded had received British Government denunciation."

Mr. Butler said that the nature of the British Government's view of this incident was "very serious."

Mr. Butler: "I can make no further statement to-day, but I can assure Mr. Fletcher that the Government is taking a very serious view of this incident."—Reuter.

"MAKES NO DIFFERENCE"

Shanghai, May 26. Asked on what authority the Japanese proposed to enforce the blockade on ships bound for Hongkong, which is non-Chinese, a Japanese spokesman here said: "It makes no difference. It is on the China coast."—United Press.

Cabinet
Decide On Neutrality

Tokyo, May 25. It has been authentically learned that the Japanese Ambassadors at Berlin and Rome are indignant over the Japanese decision regarding European neutrality, expressing their preference to resign rather than transmit Japan's final policy to the European Governments.

The incident contravenes their activities which favoured a tripartite military alliance, and they therefore believe that their usefulness is at an end.

At present, the Prime Minister, Baron Hiranuma, and the Foreign Minister, Mr. Arita are attempting to alter the views of the Ambassadors, but if they are unsuccessful, the resignations may be accepted.

If Ambassador Oshima, Germany, and Shiraori, Italy, resign this month, the Foreign Minister's withdrawal, since foreign policy is involved, in that event, the Foreign Office diplomat, Mr. Shigenori Togo, who is expected to return from Moscow very soon, might be appointed as Foreign Minister.

The difficulties with the Ambassadors existing since last Saturday, when the Inner Cabinet reached a final decision regarding European policy. It was expected that details of the decision would soon be divulged, possibly in connection with the signing of the German military alliance on May 22.

However, it is now known that Ambassadors Oshima and Shiraori failed to convey that decision, explaining to Tokyo that Herr von Ribbentrop and Count Ciano were otherwise engaged and that conferences could not be arranged.

The present difficulties are a continuation of the protracted friction between Oshima's and Shiraori's efforts to involve Japan in the European situation and the Japanese Government's determination that Japan will not be involved outside of Asia.

Since last Saturday, various events have been lightened by the bare announcement that a decision had been reached. Government officials revealed that the decision did not agree with the Prime Minister's intention that Japan avoid European entanglement unless the Soviets were involved. There was also a desire to continue the anti-Communist arrangement without further military commitments which explains the Government's hesitancy.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs, however, declared that the Italo-German alignment was natural since they were geographically close, implying that Japan was not geographically near and should, therefore, avoid a similar alliance.

Since the army favoured a military alliance, there has been speculation of possible retaliation. It has been learned that the Government expects some dissatisfactions but they do not anticipate serious trouble.—United Press.

FAR EAST AFFECTED

Tokyo, May 26. Even if the Far East is excluded from the scope of the projected Anglo-French-Soviet military agreement, it is destined to affect the Far Eastern situation in various ways, the local situation being no exception.

The newspaper believes that the effects of the proposed pact are already beginning to affect the Far Eastern situation as demonstrated in connection with the Kwantung affair.

The Kokumin Shimbu asserts that it is certain that the proposed triple pact will contain Far Eastern clauses and says that the stiff attitude shown by the Powers regarding the Settlement and Concession issues in China, coupled with the "reckless" tactics of the Soviet Union on the Manchukuo border, will force Japan to take "an extraordinary and firm determination" for the attainment of the objective of the China Affair.—Domei.

JAPANESE BUDGET

Tokyo, May 26. The net figures of the Government budgets for the 1939-40 fiscal year consist of Yen 12,885,738,000 of income and Yen 12,728,621,000 of expenditures, the Finance Ministry announced.

The incomes show an increase of Yen 1,807,403,000 over those for the preceding year, while the expenditures exceed those for the previous year by Yen 1,780,145,000.

Included in the expenditures are Yen 8,123,621,000 in the general and special accounts and Yen 4,605,000,000 in the extraordinary account budget for the China Affair for the year from February, 1939, to January, 1940.—Domei.

EFFECT ON FUKUEN

Effect on Fookien, May 26. A sudden drop in the provincial trade of Fookien, which has shown signs of picking up since the beginning of the current year, was noticed in April and May following extensive Japanese bombings and lightning of the coast blockade.

During the first quarter of the year the total amount of Fookien's trade totalled $28,311,137, representing an increase of $5,632,569 over the last quarter in 1938, and an increase of $10,024,569 over the same period last year.—Central News.

Defences At Malta

London, May 26.

The large and rapid increase in the garrison of Malta and in the strength of its defences following Britain's announcement of a policy of guaranteeing support for certain other nations if attacked, was referred to in a speech by the Governor-General, Sir Charles Bonham-Carter, at an Empire Day Dinner.

After giving details of the increase in the garrison strength, the coast defences and the air defences, and of the shore Malta was being called upon to provide for local defence, he concluded "and say with complete confidence that Malta is safe, and equally confidently that in a very short time she will be so strong that attacking her would be an undertaking of the utmost danger."—British Wireless.

Chungking Raids

Speeds Up
Evacuation
Of Capital

Shanghai, May 26. "Scores of picked Japanese naval aircraft" staged the fourth raid in May on Chungking about 9 p.m. last night, a communiqué issued by the Japanese Fleet Headquarters to-day revealed.

The air units, under command of Lt.-Commander Yamaguchi, while directing their major attention on the headquarters of the Chairman of the National Military Council in the eastern part of the city, bombed various military establishments. Fires were caused at various places.

Four Chinese pursuit planes took to the air and challenged the invading force. One of the Chinese machines was shot down, while one Japanese plane, hit by anti-aircraft shells, crashed.

Intense anti-aircraft fire was shown from various parts of the city.

A separate squadron led by Lt.-Commander Iriya about 10 p.m. severely bombed the Chinese airfield at Kwangyangpa to the west of Chungking and demolished two hangars and a number of buildings attached to the aerodrome.

EVACUATION SPEEDED UP

Chungking, May 26. The air-raid last night has had the effect of speeding up plans for evacuation of the civilian population, large number of whom had flocked back into the city during the last week or two.

Once again the roads leading out of the city are swarming with thousands of families making off with all their portable belongings into the countryside.

The picture presented by the city is otherwise marked by stoical calmness. Shops and banks open in the early morning and late evening hours, but are closed during the middle part of the day.

At the moment there is no possibility of judging how far the Government has succeeded in its plan of reducing the population from 700,000 to 200,000, as most of the inhabitants seem to be on the move.

At least one of the Japanese planes was brought down in sight of Chungking. About five minutes after the raiders had made off through the evening mist, a red flame suddenly streaked the evening sky about 12 miles from the city. When the crowds caught sight of this sign of a burning plane they broke out into wild cheering.

In the first lull which followed the explosion of aerial bombs, detachments of troops began making their way to the scenes of destruction and were soon busy clearing up debris, removing the bodies of the dead and assisting the wounded.

First estimates place the number of casualties at 500. It seems, however, that on the whole little damage was done. Among the buildings hit were two of the city's leading banks. One bomb hit a tea-house, killed 20 persons.—Trans-Ocean.

BANKING DISTRICT SUFFERS

Chungking, May 26. The banking district appeared to be the objective of the Japanese bombing in Chungking last evening. This sector of the city was not greatly affected by the previous bombings.

Twenty-seven Japanese bombers in three squadrons converged over Shensi Road from the west.—Reuter.

CHINESE CLAIM

Chungking, May 26. The Chinese officially claim that seven Japanese planes were shot down in the aerial combat with Chinese pursuit planes just before the Chungking raid last evening. The wreckage of four machines has already been located.—Reuter.

London Reaction To FAR EAST
INCIDENTS

London, May 26. Sir Gifford Fox asked if the Admiralty were satisfied that the British naval force in the Far East was sufficient to protect any aggression British trading ships on their lawful occasions and whether it was proposed to strengthen that force.

Mr. G. H. Shakespeare, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty replied that provision of adequate naval protection for merchantmen in the Far East was receiving the Government's close attention, but it would not be in the public interest to disclose future dispositions of the fleet.—Reuter.

WANTS JAPANESE STATEMENT

London, May 26. In the House of Commons Sir G. W. Fox (Conservative, Henley) asked the Government whether in view of the constant acts of aggression on British interests in the Far East, they would consider asking Japan for a clear definition of her intentions towards foreigners and their trade in China.

Mr. Butler replied that a request for more precise information was contained in a note of January 14 from the British Government to Japan. No reply had yet been received, but Sir G. W. Fox might rest assured that Lord Halifax would not lose sight of the point.—Reuter.

QUESTIONS IN COMMONS

London, May 26. Questions dealing with the stopping of the liner Ranpura have been addressed to the Government by Mr. Arthur Henderson, Sir Gifford Fox and Mr. S. S. de Chair.

Mr. Butler replying in the House of Commons to-day described the incident and referred to the protests made by Admiral Sir Percy Noble and Sir Robert Craigie. Mr. Butler added that the question of taking further action to protect British shipping from such interference was under consideration.

Mr. Henderson asked if the establishment of a blockade off the China coast, which the Japanese have declared it was their intention to institute, would not be quite contrary to the rules of international law. He further asked that if such a blockade were established would a naval escort be provided for British ships in Chinese waters to protect them from such unlawful interference.

Mr. Butler replied it was in view of such rumours that the question of further protecting British shipping was at present receiving urgent consideration.—Reuter.

REPRISALS LEGAL

London, May 26. Information as to the exact nature of the measures for the protection of British shipping are not obtainable, but their reality is unquestionable, although anything in the nature of a convoy system or of placing guards aboard British ships appears unpracticable owing to the extent of China waters and the number of ships involved and the limited resources of the Navy.

The Government is keenly surveying the whole situation in China. The best informed observers are of the opinion that the boarding of the Ranpura was partly due to the militarists' ill-temper at the rebuff encountered at Kwantung and partly their realisation that the war is not going well for Japan, the end appearing to be more remote than ever.

As this realisation deepens it is expected that Japanese interference is likely to become worse and worse. An authority on international law stressed the legality of reprisals for acts by one country detrimental to the interests of another, provided they are of a similar nature and confined to the same plane.

In this connection it is understood the question of countering the Japanese restrictions on trade and currency in North China by consular certificates on all imports from these areas to prove they were purchased and financed in the free and open market is by no means pigeon-holed and is again being carefully considered.

It is understood that both Sir Robert Craigie and Mr. Grew in recent communications to Tokyo on the Shanghai question left no doubt in the Japanese mind of the Anglo-American attitude to any forcible interference in the Settlement's administration.—Reuter.

French Ban
On Japanese
Goods

London, May 26. Mr. Butler, replying to a question as to the extent of the French prohibition on the importation of Japanese goods into French territory, referred to the Franco-Japanese notes of last year and the decree of last April, instituting a system of consular certificates.

He said, "It is quite clear that their object was to secure a guarantee for importation of French goods into Japan and for transfer of necessary exchange for payments. It would not be possible to say to what extent operation of these measures involved actual exclusion of Japanese goods. The British Government is closely watching the treatment of British trade interests in the territories under Japanese control with a view to taking appropriate steps for protection if it might at any time appear necessary."

Mr. Henderson asked if it would not be better to act jointly with the French. Mr. Butler replied that there were certain difficulties, but the French measures were receiving the Government's close consideration.—Reuter.

"I've never met anything like it, you seem to have a flair for discovering all the best things in life."

HE SAID "Including you, dear! Besides, I know how careful you are about what you smoke. What else could I offer you but du Maurier?"

"They are lovely and cool. This filter tip makes them so smooth—and they don't make your mouth feel dry."

"It's the fresh flavour I like as well. You get a really satisfying smoke from good Virginia."

Flavour In Foods

BROAD beans are greatly improved in flavour if a sprig of parsley is boiled with them.

A delicious flavour is imparted to a cup of chocolate if a very small quantity of cinnamon is added to it.

A delightful flavour can be given to tea by putting the thinly-sliced rind of an orange into the tea caddy, covering with tea, and closing down for two hours at least. The tea must be stirred before use.

Spring Skins are asking for BRIMSTONE AND TREACLE

WHEN you were little, did your onions, sprouts, celery, cauliflower, red mother give you sulphur in the cabbage, as well as tomatoes and springtime? Or perhaps it was your white cabbage—all these are the grandmother, only she called it brim-sulphur rich foods.

Now a young Hollywood dietitian good salts, leaving fibres and flatulences rediscovered this old-fashioned remedy, and prescribes it, for beauty's sake, to royalty and film stars. The dietitian's new book, "Eat and Grow you see it's quite, quite in the fashion Beautiful," by Gaylord Hauser, to take brimstone and treacle. Brim- (Faber and Faber), 7s. 6d.

Cabbage and Pineapple Salad
Mix equal amounts of chopped cabbage and pineapple (fresh or tinned) and blend with cream-cheese dressing, mixing thoroughly. Serve on crisp lettuce or escarole.

Cream Cheese Dressing
Any mild cream cheese that can be whipped into the consistency of vegetable salt is all that is required. Mix the cream cheese with either orange juice or grapefruit juice or pineapple juice.

Yes, you've guessed it the answer is more fresh vegetable. Radishes, juice.

Refugees Pay £100 To Send Furniture

HUNDREDS of tons of furniture belonging to refugees from Germany and Austria are lying unclaimed in London because the owners are in Nazi concentration camps after trying in vain to reach England.

Many of them were detained after they had paid huge sums to German firms to send their personal belongings abroad.

Port of London officials said recently that each week an average of more than 700 tons of refugees' furniture, sealed with Nazi swastika badges, in four-ton packing cases, arrive by sea from Hamburg.

Packing cases, with Nazi and British Customs seals side by side, after standing unclaimed for a few days, are being moved to bonded warehouses, or to barges which store them in the London docks.

Seals put on by the Nazi authorities to stop the owners' exporting money or any other unpermitted goods appear to tell a story of German economies.

The British Customs seals of good solid lead are bound together by generous twists of strong wire. The Nazi seals are made of a cheap light alloy linked by thin white string.

TWO WEEKS' WAIT

All such packing cases are supposed to be opened in the presence of a Customs officer at the address to which they have been sent. The demand for officers to go to various addresses to supervise the opening of furniture cases is so great that of furniture arriving now cannot be opened and inspected for nearly a fortnight.

Mr. L. Woodbridge, partner in a firm of foreign removal contractors, said: "We handle an average of twenty lift-vans, or cases, and six ferry trucks—that is, 122 tons of furniture—a week, about one-sixth of the total furniture traffic to London. There is also a lot going to Hull and Grimsby."

"We often find that the furniture sent here cannot be collected because its owner has gone to a concentration camp. Refugees have told us they pay anything they are asked in German money to get their furniture out.

"The German money is no good to them anyway because they cannot take it out of the country.

"German transport firms charge them from £30 to £40 just for the packing case alone. It costs them in German money anything from £100 to send furniture for which they can hardly get 30s. when it gets here."

"A NEW BUSINESS"

At one wharf an official said: "There has been a terrific increase in this furniture traffic lately. Each week we get from sixty to a hundred cases weighing from three to five tons each, as well as between 1,000 and 1,500 smaller packages. The increase is so great that it represents almost a completely new line of business."

On some of the refugees' packing-cases landed near London Bridge were found printed labels with the Union Jack at one end and a British Fascist symbol at the other. In between are printed the words, "Mind Britain's Business." The labels were apparently stuck on before shipment from Hamburg.

The Nazi captain of a Hamburg steamer which landed nearly ninety tons of furniture one day told an English friend, "There are 2,000 packing cases standing along the dockside at Hamburg from all over Germany and Austria, waiting for a ship."

Hundreds of people stood on London Bridge recently looking at twenty-three huge packing cases that had the names of their owners painted on them in foot-high letters. These were some of the names: Zdenko Dvorak, Wein; Gustav Krauer; Harry W. Hamacher; Alexander Philipp; Walter Schneider; Wilh-Grassow.

The two packing cases of Zdenko Dvorak from Vienna had no Nazi sign on their seals. They were sealed with heavy lead stamps of the Austrian Imperial two-headed eagle.

Recruit Measured By Ladder

WHEN 21-years-old David Thomas Smith, of Kingston-street, Walworth, S.E., presented himself as a recruit at the depot of the 7th Queen's Regiment, Territorials, recently he almost upset the depot's organisation.

David is 6ft. 11in. in height. The official measuring stand at the depot stops at 6ft. 6in.

He was measured finally against a wall. A corporal stood on a ladder to make the mark.

David, who is known to his friends as "Tiny," will have to wait for his uniform. The quartermaster could find nothing to fit. Everything will have to be specially made.

"I decided to do my bit like the rest," he said. "I am used to being chaffed about my height—I was 'Lamp-post' at school—so I don't mind being taller than the rest of my new pals in the Terriers."

"My father served through the war. He has given me a German bugle which he picked up on the battlefield at Beaumont Hamel as a memento of my enlistment."

Then David's father let out a "secret."

"It is not my son's first experience of the Army," he said. "He ran away and joined the Guards when he was 15 and drew a man's pay for four months before he was found to be under-age. Then he was discharged."

TWO GAMES FOR SOUTH CHINA IN BASEBALL LEAGUE

SCHEDULE MADE TO FIT WITH PRESENCE OF U.S.S. MINDANAO

(By "Bingle")

South China Athletic Association have the toughest assignment over the week-end, as they are playing two games. Since the Baseball League has made up the schedule to fit in with the presence in this port of U. S. S. Mindanao, this unfortunate circumstance,—in which a team plays one game on a hot Saturday afternoon and another on an equally torrid Sunday morning—cannot be helped.

After an untroubled schedule last year, without a game being postponed on account of rain, last week-end's washout was the weatherman's first interruption in a long, long spell. I'm afraid conditions this year will be similar to those of the seasons of '36 and '37, when we didn't know whether we were a-foot or on horse-back.

However, weather permitting, South China and Union Brewery will clash at Caroline Hill to-day at 2.30 p.m. Both teams are "arin" to go, with the edge on "Beer Baron" Bennett's Beermen, who have won two and lost none. On the crest of a winning wave, the UB boys feel that this game is another push-over but—I don't know! They shouldn't underestimate C. C. Lee's stalwarts, who are all good leather players.

Lam Hwa, who lambasted Johnny Alvarez's speed balls—but couldn't even see Spitz Perera's roundabouts—shouldn't massacre Madson Arculli's straight pitching. That there are so few hits off Arculli has been a source of bewilderment to this correspondent. Perhaps batting eyes haven't been attuned to the atmospheric conditions out at Caroline Hill. There are so many muffed and misjudged flies out there that are blamed on the sun. Tchik! Tchik!

DISORGANISED TEAMS

The Chinese Baseball Club take on Club de Recreio in to-morrow's opener at 10 a.m. Both teams are apparently disorganised until this season. The Chinese are without a leader, while the Rambling Reds have changed their leadership this season. But, before the season ends, I have a hunch that the Chinese Baseballers will find themselves, and really go to town. They have two good hurlers in Earl Wong and Wally Ching, and diminutive Nip Lum has already proved his mettle behind the plate, while versatile Wally can also fill the bill as back-stop. Veteran Tommy Chan, who starred for a few seasons with China's baseball squad in the Far Eastern Olympics, is their logical leader, to my mind.

The Rambling Reds, who are also seemingly unable to get started, have good material to work on. They certainly miss Eddie and Linho Giesano. In their tussle with South China a couple of weeks ago, they outlived their opponents 9 to 8, but came out on the short end of a 7 to 5 verdict. Their hits were scattered, of course, and six were left on bases. A little more "umph" and they'd have won the game!

I give the edge to the Chinese squad in this tilt.

LEE'S TASK

South China's clash with the Hongkong Baseball Club in the nightcap to-morrow at 11.30 a.m., will find the former aggregation a somewhat tired outfit. They have only the one slabman, C. C. Lee, to rely on, and I doubt if he can pitch two days in

AMERICA'S LAST HOPE VANISHES

London, May 26.

America's last chance of winning the British Amateur Golf Championship now in progress at Hoylake vanished in the semi-finals to-day when the Scotman, Alex. Kyle, defeated "Bill" Holt, of Syracuse, by two and one after Holt had earlier defeated young Kenneth Thom in a sparkling match by three and two.

Anthony Duncan, the Welsh champion, is the other finalist. After beating Dick Chapman, conqueror of Charles Yates, by five and three, Duncan went on to beat Charlie Stowe by three and two in the semi-finals. The final will be played on Saturday.—United Press.

succession. If he can, he'll be "Iron Man" Lee from now on. As it is, flinging a 7-inning game in this heat leaves a pitcher pretty well petered out. But... fourteen innings! Whew!

Last week's pop rally has given the Molthenmen plenty of confidence, and they feel they're due for their first win. The Hongkongites will be augmented by the presence of flashy infielder Honorato Paulino, who switched his affections over to this Club after being released by the Union Brewery two weeks ago.

Larry Lawrence and Dave Walker will again be the battery for the Molthenmen, and they have shown improvement during practice sessions. "Colonel" Dave Walker says that he has the Indian sign on those base-runners with larceny in their hearts. We shall see what we shall see!

COOL, slender, clear-eyed, with a complexion like a wild rose—yet she's seldom missing when cocktail time rolls round. And she's seldom in bed before the small hours of the morning.

Then how can she keep that willowy figure and that soft peach bloom of a skin? Tip-toe nearer, and peep over her shoulder—you'll find the answer in her glass. Her drinks are "Gimlets," made with Rose's Lime Juice, just as they were in the good old Hong-Kong days.

And here's another secret, but keep it under your hat. She happens to know that Rose's has a quiet way of killing off a hang-over before it comes to life. No morning-after headaches after Rose's. It neutralizes the aftermath of alcohol.

Middlesex, Gloucester, Glamorgan and Essex won their matches in the County Cricket Championship programme which concluded to-day. Lancashire beat Leicestershire on first innings, while both the Universities were defeated, Oxford by the West Indians and Cambridge by Yorkshire.

The West Indians seem to have got into their stride with the advent of warmer weather. Batting only once against Oxford, they declared at 480 for seven wickets—the highest total of the programme. Three batsmen, H. P. Bayley (104), J. H. Cameron (106) and E. A. V. Williams (126 not out) helped to swell the score.

TRAGEDY IN A WAR-TORN CAPITAL

THE EXCLUSIVE photographs reproduced on this page graphically illustrate the horrors of modern warfare, and are of added interest in view of the renowned aerial bombardment of Chungking on Thursday.

The photograph ABOVE shows the great fire raging in the heart of the city after the raid on May 5, when 1,800 people died. RIGHT shows flames started by incendiary bombs spreading rapidly through the business area of the city.

These photographs, which are exclusive to the "Telegraph" in Hongkong, were flown here by plane and are reproduced for the first time.

FREUD, IN FEAR, KEPT THIS BOOK SECRET

Plans For Territorial Call-Up

Plans for simplifying mobilisation of the Services were outlined by Mr. Hore-Bellish, Secretary for War, moving the second reading of the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces Bill in the House of Commons recently. It provides for calling up, in batches and at convenient dates, a large proportion of the Regular Services, including officers, who will be required to serve, so far as can be foreseen, for not more than three months.

GUNNERY PRACTICE

Arrangements will be made for gunnery personnel to train for a fortnight out of the month at practice camps, so that in their case the rotation of units at the selected war stations will be more frequent.

Land which will be acquired will be mainly used for permanent defences, which will be manned later for the militia.

FLEET RESERVE

The Admiralty, in order to increase the readiness of the Reserve Fleet, including the anti-submarine and mine sweeping units, are to call out Class D of the Royal Fleet Reserve—estimated at about 3,500 men—in two batches for service of three months each.

Pensioners who have most recently finished their active service engagements, numbering 1,500 in two batches of 750, will be called out for a similar period of service.

About 300 members of the Royal Naval Patrol Service, and about 100 Royal Naval Volunteers, wireless reserve ratings, will also be called out; a number of retired officers will be required for six months' service.

A proportion of the Auxiliary Air Force will be called up at the same time as the anti-aircraft units, and in a similar rotation, for periods of one month.

SQUIRREL CHIMNEY

Watertown, Mass. When Patrick McHugh built a fire on moving into his newly-purchased home, the smoke went everywhere but up the chimney. Firemen found a squirrel's nest in the chimney had blocked the smoke and caught fire.

A GERMAN book which recently appeared in Amsterdam shows that the threat of persecution still hangs over the scientific research worker as menacingly as it did in the darkest periods of history.

"For these reasons," wrote the author in 1938, "I shall not let this work be known, but that does not prevent me from writing it down. . . . It can then lie hidden until a time comes when it can safely venture into the light or until someone who reaches the same conclusions and opinions can be told: 'There was somebody even in those dark days who thought the same as you.'"

The book is by Professor Sigmund Freud; its title, "Moses and Monotheism." The public who have been awaiting its publication for years were told that it would only appear after the author's death.

Clearly it is among Freud's most important speculative work. It suggests that Moses was not a Jew but an Egyptian follower of the Pharaoh Akhnaton, and it is from Akhnaton's sun-worship that he believes Judaism and Christianity to be derived.

THEORY OF RELIGION

In the course of the argument Freud examines the causes of anti-semitism, the continued existence of the Jewish race, and will offend large sections of public opinion by his whole treatment of religion, which he sees as a counter-part of neurosis in the individual.

His power, he says, "comes from the truth it contains, only this truth is not a material truth, but an historical one."

The circumstances which have made publication possible are ironically due to Hitler.

The research and most of the writing were done several years ago in the Vienna of Dollfus and Schuschnigg.

But these dictatorialships were so closely linked with the Roman Catholic Church that an offence caused to the latter would have meant the suppression of the psychoanalytic movement whose headquarters were in Vienna.

LEFT VIENNA

Accordingly Freud wrote his treatise and published only inoffensive extracts.

In March, 1938, came the German invasion.

"In the certainty of being pursued now not only for my beliefs but also for my 'race,' I left the city which from early childhood onwards had been my home for 78 years."

"I found," he goes on, "a warm welcome in beautiful free, large-hearted England. . . . There were no more external restraints, or at least none from which one should shrink back."

"In the few weeks of my stay here I have received a great number of greetings from friends who were glad I was here, from people I had not met and others who had no sort of connection with me."

"As well—in numbers which seemed surprising to a foreigner—letters of another kind, which were concerned about my spiritual welfare, which showed me the way of Christ and wished to enlighten me on the future of Israel."

"The good people who wrote like this cannot have known much about me," he goes on with an almost audible sigh.

"I expect when this work on Moses is published among my new fellow-countrymen I shall also lose enough of the goodwill now shown me by many others."

"Der Mann Moses und die Monotheistische Religion," von Sigmund Freud. Verlag Albert de Lange, Amsterdam.

New Face Built On A Boy

A 12-YEAR-OLD boy, who is described by his father as a "miracle of modern surgery," had his eleventh operation in two and a half years recently.

He had a bone from a rib grafted into his nose at the Hospital for Sick Children, Great Ormond Street, London.

The boy, Raymond Stevenson, of Louth, Lincolnshire, was badly hurt and disfigured in a motor accident.

When he recovered from the first effects of his injuries, surgeons commenced to rebuild his face. This has now been done.

LIFE BEGINS AGAIN

"My boy has been given a completely new face and a chance to lead a normal life," Mr. John P. Stevenson said. "He was terribly disfigured; now his face will be normal."

"The surgeons have taken skin from his chest and thighs and grafted it on to his face. Unless I had seen the new face built up, I would never have believed it possible."

Raymond collects stamps as a hobby and makes light of all he has undergone.

"I like hospital life," he said.

LATE NEWS

Internees Try Great War Ruse

A RUSE to escape from internment so often adopted with success by interned soldiers in the Great War was employed by five Chinese soldiers in the Matsu-chung internment camp yesterday evening, but the ending, for them, was unhappy.

They were discovered and brought before the magistrate this morning.

The men, Cheng Kwok-ki, Lion Pak-kan, Sui Ki-hon, Pang Tze, and Tam Kuan-man, tried to gain freedom from the camp by hiding in a lorry loaded with straw.

The man nearly escaped, but just as the lorry was leaving the camp, they were caught by the police who had been informed.

Mr. Eric Himsforth, the Kowloon Magistrate, this morning sentenced the five men to one month's imprisonment, at the same time remarking that he sympathized with them.

However, he pointed out that as conditions are at the present, they should obey the law.

Inspector Rogers, prosecuting, said the men concealed themselves in the straw after it had been loaded into the lorry by internees. However, they were spotted by somebody in the camp and the police were tipped off. The lorry was stopped and searched as it was passing through the camp gates.
